Our Speaker

John R Jordan, PhD

Jack Jordan is a licensed psychologist in private practice in Wellesley, MA, and Pawtucket, RI, where he specializes in working with loss and bereavement. He is also the founder and until 2007 the Director of the Family Loss Project, a research and clinical practice providing services for bereaved families. He has specialized in work with survivors of suicide and other losses for more than 30 years. As a Fellow in Thanatology (Association for Death Education and Counseling), Jack maintains an active practice in grief counseling for individuals and couples. He has run support groups for bereaved parents, young widows & widowers, and suicide survivors, with the latter running for over 10 years.

Jack is the Clinical Consultant for Survivor Services of the Samaritans in Boston, where he is helping to develop innovative outreach and support programs for suicide survivors. Jack is also the Professional Advisor to the Survivor Council of the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention (AFSP), and a former Board member of AFSP (New England Affiliate) and the Association for Death Education and Counseling (ADEC). In 2006 Jack was invited to become a member of the International Workgroup on Death, Dying, and Bereavement, and was the recipient of the ADEC 2006 Research Recognition Award. Jack also received funding in 2004 from AFSP to begin a research project on the types of support and services needed by suicide survivors.

He has published in professional journals such as Omega, Death Studies, Suicide and Life-Threatening Behavior, Crisis, and Family Process. Jack is the co-author of After Suicide Loss: Coping with Your Grief, a book on suicide bereavement for surviving friends and family. He is currently co-editing with John McIntosh a new professional book on suicide survivors.

Grieving After Suicide: The Journey of Survivors

The loss of a loved one to suicide can be devastating and often very different from other types of losses. There are many aspects of grief after suicide that may make the mourning process very difficult, including the feelings of shock, guilt, rejection, and social stigma that may follow. This talk will address some of the ways that mourning after suicide may be different for individuals and families. It will also discuss things that suicide survivors (those who are grieving a loss to suicide) can do to help themselves recover, resources that are available, and realistic expectations for what the healing journey might look like for survivors.

Finding Resiliency Through the Journeys of Other Survivors

Survivor Panel Discussion

Each survivor of suicide loss must find his or her own healing pathway through the intense grief that may follow. Yet there are many things that survivors can learn by listening to the experiences of others who are recovering from the same traumatic loss. This panel discussion will include people who have lost a loved one to suicide. They will talk about their experiences, their methods of coping, and their suggestions for new survivors. They will also address the longer term changes that have emerged as they have worked to come to terms with the suicide of their loved one and to rebuild their lives in the aftermath. Time for questions from the audience will also be included.
